

Fall has fallen and the weather is creating beautiful pictures for us this week!

Gardens around Stillwaters are closing down for the year but I think I captured some last minutes bursts of nature.

Savory last little bits from the garden.

That last burst of color!

We will enjoy it while we can!

Even being green is good!

As fall comes on faster by the day don't forget we have a whole month left of Daylight Savings Time. Enjoy each bit of sunshine and take time to smell the roses (and other Stillwaters beauty) in the days ahead.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK:

blow their own freshness into you, and the storms their energy, while cares will drop off like autumn leaves.”
