

FEBRUARY 2, 2019

Okay, all together now... Let's sing it together...let it snow, let it snow, let it snow! Click HERE for our sing-a-long.

Yes, we are expecting our first snow of the year this weekend. Just as Punxsutawney Phil's forecast is in for a early spring, we are about to have our first winter storm!

SNOW IN THE FORECAST:

Forecast for the next week looks like this:

Look at all those snowflakes!

Luckily we live in Stillwaters, because if we do get snow that accumulates, there will be workers out shoveling early to clear sidewalks. Best not to go out if you don't have to (prevent those slips and broken bones when you can) and stay in to enjoy the beautiful sight.

The picture below is a snowy day in March in a year not so long ago.

Embrace the beautiful storm on our way and enjoy!

QUOTE OF THE WEEK:

Snow falling soundlessly in the middle of the night will always fill my heart with sweet clarity - Novala Takemoto
